A structured settlement, sometimes called a "structure", is an agreement in which an individual accepts a series of installment payments over time (as opposed to a single lump sum amount) from a defendant or insurer. The name refers to the fact that payments are structured to meet specific needs. A structured settlement program can be designed to provide an upfront cash payment followed by periodic payments to be used for everyday needs and future obligations.

These types of payments provide financial security and protection. Future income is guaranteed for certain periods of time and/or for life, depending on the request of the eligible recipient of the funds. The annuity contracts are only issued by life insurance companies with top-tier credit ratings. With proper planning you can ensure that money is guaranteed for years, safe from financial mistake and settlement fraud and corruption. If you choose this option, we will provide you with contact information for known service providers in the US with a credible history of structuring these types of periodic payments. A representative will contact you to assist you in establishing this type of account.
